

Investing in Families

Making grants to charitable organisations working to support the most vulnerable and disadvantaged families in Kent, thereby improving people's life chances and promoting social cohesion.

Colyer-Fergusson Trust believes that 'families' in the most inclusive sense of the word, are the yarn that creates the fabric of society. Individual families can be delicate and vulnerable at times; but woven together into communities they are remarkably strong and resilient. But too many are struggling at the sharp end of socio-economic problems; facing persistent and chronic poverty and overwhelmed by desperate circumstances. Poverty restricts their choices and too many are having to make impossible decisions, such as whether to heat their homes or pay their rent.

This programme will make grants to organisations working to support the most vulnerable and disadvantaged families, thereby improving people's life chances and promoting social cohesion. It will support charitable organisations working to meet the needs of families with a wide range of problems, including social isolation; poverty and debt; drug and alcohol abuse; mental health issues; domestic abuse; caring for a sick or disabled family member and the short and long-term impacts of bereavement.

The Trust is particularly keen to hear from organisations that take a 'whole family' approach and those that work to tackle the underlying root causes of the problems that families face. Priority will be given to organisations that consult and involve their client group in the delivery of their services, as all too often families say that they feel completely incidental to the decisions that are made about them.

Decisions

We aim to inform applicants as soon as possible about the outcome of their application following the Trustees' meeting. Unfortunately, the Trust receives many more applications than it can fund and therefore many good proposals, will be turned down. The trustees and their staff regret that they are not able to enter into correspondence about the reasons for their decisions.
